Note: All FRP solutions—across pools, jacuzzis, spas, and planters—can be fully customized to meet specific design and dimensional requirements. Each variation in size or geometry necessitates the fabrication of a dedicated mould, which contributes to higher initial production costs. Standardized models benefit from existing moulds, enabling improved cost control, faster production timelines, and consistent quality.

In scenarios involving bulk production, mould costs are typically amortized and absorbed within the manufacturing process. However, for single-unit or low-volume requirements, this one-time mould cost becomes a direct cost component, thereby influencing the overall project pricing.
